

PINCHOT WILL URGE COMPROMISE

MOTION PICTURES, NOT BULLETS WILL BRING PEACE TO WORLD

Miss Giles, President of New Organization Suggests Plan To Bring Understanding to The People Through the Medium of the Screen

BY HARRY R. HUNT.
NEA Service Writer.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Shooting pictures instead of bullets, to insure a lasting world peace, is the plan of Katherine A. Giles, president of the Brotherhood of Man Foundation of Washington.

In this battle of celluloid films against cellulose powder Miss Giles hopes to enlist the support of the mothers of all nations.

"It is the sons who fight, it is they who suffer. Why should they not unite against war?" she demands.

"War and preparation for war is not the way to peace. They have never brought peace, and they have never kept peace. What peace? The last war? Only hate, jealousy, passions, to provoke new wars."

"Wisdom brings brotherhood, brotherhood brings understanding, understanding brings love and tolerance and love and tolerance bring peace."

"This understanding of man by man of the Jew by the American, of the Russian by the Greek, of every people by every other people, can be brought about in no other way so effectively or directly as by the medium of the motion picture."

Purposes Fund.

"The motion picture speaks a universal language. Any eye can read, any heart translate the message of the film. No other contact can be established between peoples; no other medium can so eloquently and forcefully express what is, after all, the great fact of existence—the oneness, deep in their hearts and purposes, of God's people everywhere, whether they be known as Christians, Buddhists, Mahometans or what not."

Miss Giles proposes a fund for the production of such pictures—pictures to preach the oneness of mankind, the futility of war and the beauty of peace—pictures raised by the mothers of the world through the Brotherhood of Man Foundation under the laws of Delaware. Under its charter the foundation would be empowered to produce and distribute pictures.

A first monumental picture entitled "Reality," in which the author seeks to get under the skin of all peoples and lay bare the fundamentals that move universal hopes and desires, already has been prepared by her.

Officials of the Vitaphone Company estimate its proper production would cost between $200,000 and $250,000. In order to keep clear from all possible commercial entanglements, however, which might hamper the most effective use of such films, she hopes the foundation will be enabled to finance and produce the films themselves. Any wealthy pacifist desirous of letting his dollars break into the movies need look no further. The Brotherhood of Man Foundation will welcome them.

"Why Fight?"

Miss Giles' appeal to the mothers of the world for support in her campaign is being widely distributed.

GOLD FOUND IS BERGDOLL'S?

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 29.—Lee Houser, a laborer, who last Thursday claimed to have discovered a box containing over $100,000 in gold and bills while working on a road near here, last night declared that story was a hoax.

Houser is said to have visited a lawyer during one of his absences from home recently and neighbors believed he found and has hidden the treasure, fearing that the government would take it if it were found to be that said to have been buried in this vicinity by Grover Cleveland Bergdall.

Two department of justice agents who came here from Washington are understood to be little concerned about the money but are endeavoring to learn more regarding Bergdall's stay here in 1918; who was with him and how he made his escape from the Hotel Vivian where he registered as "James Carson."

CREAM SOLD IN ASHLEY IN ONE DAY BRINGS $4,000; NO WORRY OVER WHEAT

A. W. Meldinger, merchant of Ashley, McIntosh county seat, was discussing business conditions with H. J. Duemeland of the Bismarck Grocery Company here yesterday.

"That's easy," replied Mr. Meldinger. "Last Saturday there were 400 cans of cream brought into Ashley. They averaged $10 a can."

That's $4,000 to the farmers in one day. Last Saturday was no different from many other Saturdays.

Ashley has never boasted much about its importance in the cream buying business, but it developed that the town, with 1,200 population, has six cream buyers. Business men there pay cash to wholesale houses and the farmers usually pay cash to them, because they have cream money coming in right along.

SAYS BUSINESS METHODS ARE FARMING NEED

F. Benz, Farmer and Agricultural Agent, Speaks to Rotarians of Bismarck Today

LESS LEGISLATION Too Much of That, Now, Speaker, Says in Discussing Methods to Aid Industry

Farming needs less legislation, less credit and more elbow grease and business organization, F. Benz, farmer of the state of Washington and with the agricultural department of the Northern Pacific, told the Bismarck Rotarians at their weekly luncheon today at which a number of Burleigh county farmers were guests of honor.

Straight from the shoulder facts were given, words were not minced and a spade was called a spade.

"I appear before you Rotarians today," he said, "in a dual capacity. First as a representative of the Northern Pacific, the pioneer road of the great Northwest which first linked up the middle west with the great centers of the east. We hope again when times are opportune to place a large number of people in this state and develop the greatest empire possible."

Biggest Business

"But in a larger sense I am here today as a representative farmer proud of his occupation and I will discuss the brief time allotted the 'Needs of Agriculture in America.'"

"There are four reasons why farming is the biggest business in America today because:

"First.—It is the basic business.

"Second.—It is a problematical business.

"Third.—It is the largest business.

"Fourth.—It is the Best Business."

"There are many who will not agree with me, but I believe statistics and experience will back me up in these contentions. Figures substantiate me regardless of the fact that today the average farm and farmers seems to be down in the dumps. Today, it is farm is deathly sick and is being run by a disease, however, but not a new disease, however, but a disease of false psychology toward farming business. In the first part the free homesteaded entry law has worked a hardship upon agriculture. The American farmer would have been better off today if he had never received a free acre from Uncle Sam. If he has been forced to pay for every acre he got, it would have been better secured for him better consideration in the markets of the world. Because his was a free gift, general attitude toward the farmer has been on a false basis. He is the only producer upon whose product the buyer fixes the price. This has resulted in a starving agriculture and history continues that if this 'conditioning' continues we may expect a starving nation."

Balance of Power

"Through capitalizing, farmer discontent incident to this situation, the radicals seek to capture the balance of power. God help America if they accomplish their purpose for once they do all that we hold dear in American life and institutions will be swept away."

"The five needs of agriculture today are: Education, Organization, Representation, legislation and elimination. The farmer should be the best educated man in the business world. He needs to be a scientist, organizer and executive combined for while he is subject to all the economic laws any business man is he has the elements to contend with and the intricate laws of nature."

"Organization is necessary but from the bottom up and inside out. In A. C. Townsend tried to organize the farmers by aeroplane. He organized them from the top down so that before he was through they felt the hot place under their feet. It is necessary that the organization be done by farmers not agitators or demagogues or educators who do not know the practical side."

"The producers who come merely to fight class consciousness and class hatreds upon the farming class. They get the farmer nowhere but often lead him into a terrible expense."

"The agricultural colleges are doing a fine work, but unfortunately only 25 per cent of the graduates graduate upon the land. The other 75 per cent enter the professions. Our agricultural colleges should be able to send back 90 per cent of their graduates to the farm."

"To be a successful farmer, he must know his business, own his business, run his business, and mind his business."

"It is proper for a farmer to be in the legislature or in the governor's chair but he should not be an actor there as a farmer not as a demagogue or a politician."

WAR MOTHER CARRIES GREETINGS TO INDIANS IN UNIQUE CEREMONY

Mrs. A. E. Jones, State War Mother, Meets Members of First Indian War Mothers Chapter in the United States—Formal Ceremonies Carried on Through an Interpreter

Appeal to the Indian War Mothers of the Cannon Ball chapter, to send the Standing Rock reservation, to send their president, Mrs. Gray Bull, and the state standard bearer, Mrs. Baal Two Bears, mother of the Young Chief Albert Grass who was killed by direct hit of an enemy airplane at Soissons, to the national convention of the War Mothers at Kansas City in September was voiced at the most unique session in the annals of the War Mothers at the grounds of the Missouri Slope fair association last evening by Mrs. Albert L. Jones of Lisbon, state war mother.

Mrs. Jones, Mrs. A. E. McLane of Kenmare, first vice war mother; and Mrs. E. T. Danielson, Enderlin, state treasurer, were guests at a feast given in the Indian encampment for the Indian war mothers in honor of the state officers. Mrs. A. B. Welch, wife of Mike Watske, (Major A. B. Welch) adopted son chief of the late Albert Grass chief justice of the Sioux tribe.

In an opening in the great circle of Indian camps had been set up a large gaily colored tepee with pictures of notable events in the history of the Sioux nation. It was the property of A. B. Welch and through its low tent opening filed the state officers, Mrs. Welch, of Indian war mothers of soldier sons who saw service in France, a couple of the old men of the tribe, Chief Welch, Interpreter Low Dog and a couple of newspaper men.

Mr. Welch gave a brief talk in which he advised that the state officers were pleased to be with them, that they had come to talk with the Indian members of the organization to explain things which they did not understand.

Gave Them Greeting

Standing on a ceremonial carpet in the center of the tepee, Mrs. Jones through an interpreter gave the Indian a warm greeting. She told of driving 200 miles in order to be with them; "We are very proud to be with our Indian friends and war mothers."

Seeks Information

Mrs. LeFranchois then asked details as to who was eligible to hold office. Of the 27 members of the Cannon Ball chapter, 17 were blood mothers of soldiers sons, the others were mothers by the Indian relationship of marriage or adoption, which holds as sacred a place in their lives as actual mother.

THINK WOMAN SHOT MAN WHO MURDERED TWO

Denver Police Chief Announces Theory After Investigation of the Crime

Denver, Colo., Aug. 29.—That the slayer of Mrs. Lillian McGlone and Miss Emma Vasconcelos, who were killed in the McGlone apartment Monday afternoon was shot and wounded by Mrs. McGlone in her fight for life and that she may be dead or dying in some obscure corner of this city was the theory advanced last night by Chief of Police Rudd Williams, following his investigation of the case.

Chief Williams advanced this opinion in explaining his conclusions for the presence of a bloodstained rug in the death room on a chair beyond the reach of either woman. The fact that McGlone was identified with the bodies as the one he left with his wife for her protection while he was away also supports this conclusion.

Joseph Brindley, employee of a mercantile house, who was questioned in the house had not been located today.

Hard Times Seen In Europe By Jamestown Man

Jamestown, Aug. 29.—"While Norway made much money during the war, a great deal of the war prosperity was wasted and there is considerable hard times," was the statement made by Martin Figar, of this city, who just returned from a trip in Europe.

"France seems in bad shape," said Figar, "and in England there is evidence of great unemployment. In the ship yards half finished vessels were seen on which no work had been done for several years."

Silence is silver. Many a small brother gets a dime for keeping his mouth shut.

FINAL EFFORT IN COAL FIGHT TO COME TODAY

Pennsylvania Governor Will Meet Operators, Miners Tonight with Proposition

GOVERNORS ARE READY Quick Release of Anthracite in Eastern States Is Planned if Strike Is Called

(By the Associated Press.)

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 29.—Governor Pinchot will bring his intervention in the anthracite situation to a climax tonight. He called on representatives of the mine operators and officials of the miners' union to meet him at 6 p. m. tonight to hear and answer a compromise proposal which he has prepared in an endeavor to avert a suspension of operations September 1.

(By the Associated Press.)

New York, Aug. 29.—Pledging full cooperation to Federal Fuel Administrator Wadleigh in an emergency plan to obtain for consumers a maximum fuel supply in event of a protracted suspension of anthracite mining after September 1, representatives of 11 Atlantic seaboard states left New York last night to await the outcome of Governor Pinchot's conference at Harrisburg with operators and union leaders.

Representatives of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the American Railway association, the U. S. Bureau of Mines and the American Federation of Engineering societies, also were parties to the agreement.

"If the need arises we will start at once to put into operation our plan of maintaining rapid distribution of what anthracite is available and of sufficient bituminous, oil and other substitutes to keep the people from suffering," Mr. Wadleigh said.

The plan provided establishment by each state of an emergency fuel distributing organization and a similar one by the federal government.

Leeds, who has been suffering for some time from an organic intestinal infection, was sinking rapidly this afternoon and her doctor stated that "virtually all hope had been abandoned. The last sacraments were administered by a priest of the Russian orthodox church."

London, Aug. 29.—Late this afternoon Princess Anastasia's breathing became more labored and her pulse became more feeble. Thousands were assembled to bid her farewell but she did not recognize any of them. Queen Mother Alexandra called to express the sympathy of the British royal family. Through the windows in the house of St. James Place Prince Christopher, husband of the dying woman, could be seen weeping and burying his face in his hands.

STILL DELAY BUYING COAL

Need a Good Snowstorm to Start it, Says Commission Head

M'MASTERS IN CONFERENCE

North Dakota people are no buying lignite coal now in spite of the threats of an eastern strike and appeals by public officials. Chairman Frank Millhollan of the state railroad commission, said today.

"Folks will wait until a snow storm comes to order coal," he said. "I remember that last year we had to ask the Northern Pacific railroad to hitch two cars of coal to a snowplow to get into McCluskey."

"Most of the lignite mines are on branch lines, and if there is a strike until the snow is on the ground, a snow storm may make it impossible for the railroads to haul the coal."

"Lignite ought to be bought right now, and if stored in the basement there will be no appreciable loss on the quality of lignite coal we have. People ought to buy coal now for their own protection, and also to let the lignite mines get started on their fall and winter production. The more they produce the more employment is furnished."

The resolution to be presented to the meeting, urging that Presidents of the United States take office right after election, suggests also that the new Congress function immediately after election. The committee report on this resolution declares:

"The resolution is really a return to and a carrying out of the intention of the framers of the constitution, who never meant that there should be a long delay between the election and the assembling of Congress, but on the contrary, intended that the Congress elected in autumn should assemble early in December."

The committee favors appointment of a large committee, consisting of one member from each state, to endeavor to obtain passage of a constitutional amendment along lines of an amendment which already has passed the senate.

TALKS ON MOVING CROPS IN NORTHWEST

Car. Shortage and Traffic Delays Guarded Against

Transportation preparedness for handling 1923 crops in the Northwest was analyzed today by J. M. Rapelle, vice president of the Northern Pacific Railway, insofar as the company is concerned, in a detailed statement issued to operating employees.

Mr. Rapelle's statement says: "Our new crop is now beginning to move and it is natural to look around and see just how much we have accomplished in preparing ourselves to handle this crop."

"This year sees the completion of our automatic block signals from the Twin Cities to Puget Sound. This work started some years ago, has cost the company approximately four million dollars, but it has increased our capacity for moving business and most important of all it makes our railroad a very safe railway to travel and work on. Incidentally, we cannot help but feel some pride in moving this year's business. My recent trip to the coast convinces me that, on the completion of the work now under way, we will have no weak spots that will slow up traffic nor cause derailments this fall or winter."

"Locomotives are an essential item in moving crops. On our locomotives, as with our track and our cars, we have been spending money more than our revenues have warranted, all with the idea of securing well ballasted railway for this year's business. CHEESE FACTORY MAY BE OPENED IN WILLISTON

Williston, Aug. 28.—A mass meeting has been called for September 1 to consider the opening of a cheese factory in Williston.

The proposed factory would not only be of benefit to the farmers but will increase the business transacted in the city.

First Wheat Weighs 55 Pounds Bushel

Williston, Aug. 28.—The first load of wheat for the 1923 season brought to the Farmer Elevator was from the farm belonging to Dr. E. J. Hagen. Very little of the wheat around Williston has been threshed at this time what the average yield will be.

San Diego, Aug. 28 (By the A. P.).—Another contact between two planes in the aerobay over the city at 5:25 o'clock this morning replenished with gas and oil the machine in which Capt. Lowell Smith and Lieut. John Richter were making records of endurance, speed, and distance. If the two planes remain in flight at 5:10 p. m., they will have made a new world endurance record.

Early today they dropped a note. It said: "Everything O. K. Going Fine."

Reduce Tuition For Non-Resident

Williston, Aug. 28.—At a regular meeting of the Board of Education last week it was decided to reduce that part of the High School tuition to be paid by non-resident pupils from $64.00 a year to $40.00, which will mean a payment of $20.00 each semester for each non-resident pupil enrolled in High School.

The $24 will still be paid by the Districts from which pupils come, as provided by law, making the total tuition this year $34.00 instead of $108.00. Although the available funds to be raised by local taxes has been reduced by the new law limiting the levy to 18 mills, it was thought that the actual expense of instruction to each pupil in the high school department would not exceed $24 the coming year and what patrons of the Williston school would greatly appreciate the reduction.

Board Managers of State Mill Will

Grand Forks, Aug. 28.—The board of managers of the North Dakota Mill and Elevator, will probably meet jointly with the North Dakota Industrial Commission within the next three weeks to consider the report on the audit of the enterprise now in progress.

Northern Pacific Signals Cross Half the Continent From St. Paul-Minneapolis, Duluth To North Pacific Coast

ACROSS half the continent—from the Mississippi River and head of the Great Lakes to the North Pacific Coast—the Northern Pacific is installing electric automatic block signals.

This great undertaking is nearing completion. At the close of this year's construction activities, all the main line of the Northern Pacific Railway from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Seattle, Tacoma and Portland, will be protected by the most modern type of electrically operated block signals.

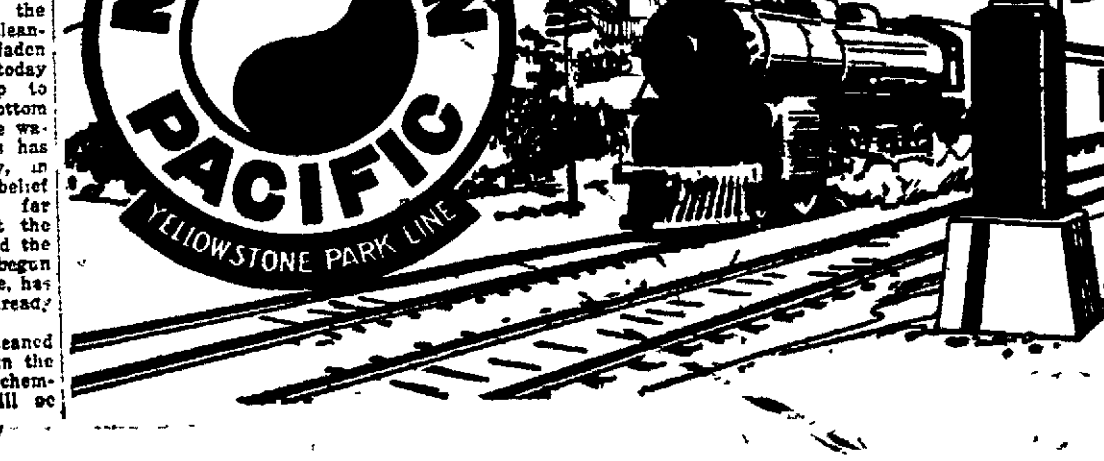

In addition the important main track between Duluth-Superior and St. Paul-Minneapolis has the complete standard installation.

Altogether, the Northern Pacific has more than 2800 miles of track safeguarded with automatic block signals. The cost has been more than $4,000,000.

Every possible care is taken to give passengers on the Northern Pacific safe, comfortable, quick and completely satisfactory transportation service. In the last seven years the Northern Pacific has carried 60,000,000 people safely without a single fatal accident among its passengers.

On your next trip over the Northern Pacific watch the block signals. Notice the accuracy of their operation. They are representative of the scientific precision, skill and genius which goes into the operation of the Northern Pacific Ry.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Griffin and son, Howard returned to Mandan Monday from Minneapolis, where they met Mrs. G. G. Griffin of Moorhead.

LADDIE BOY'S RIVAL

Hardy, a Siberian husky, has just arrived in Washington. The late President Harding became attached to the dog while in Alaska, and intended that he should be a playmate for Laddie Boy. Hardy may be kept at the White House, thus becoming Laddie Boy's successor.

YOUTH SLAYS

Self in Hog Lot

One of the most gruesome suicides ever committed was that of Harry Hanson, 27, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hanson, who reside 7 1/2 miles west of Sanger, who killed himself by means of a hog in a hog lot where 45 head of hogs were pastured Saturday. The bones were not found until Monday.

For some time he had been employed as a farm hand on the John Lukin place four and a half miles southeast of Fort Clark. Saturday night at about 10 o'clock he wrote a note saying that he intended to kill himself and that "you may or you may not find my body."

Although the family aroused the entire neighborhood and searched they were unable to find any trace of the young man. Monday morning Emil Iverson, farmer of the Fort Clark district, found the skull and torso bones, stripped clean, lying in a corner of the hog lot.

Worries over the financial condition of the Hanson family of which he was the main support was thought to be the cause of the suicide. The mortgage on the Hanson farm was to be foreclosed in fifteen days and he nor his father had money to prevent the action.

Pioneer Settler

Taken By Stroke

Morton Bull, 76, a pioneer of Mandan died Monday night at 9:45 o'clock at his home after an illness of several weeks which followed a stroke of paralysis which he sustained in July.

The deceased was born April 9, 1847 at Stavanger, near Bergen, Norway where he grew to manhood and was married there to Anna Malmin in 1877 who with one daughter, Mrs. G. Bowers of Minneapolis and son, Melvin of this city survive him. A nephew, Jacob Bull resides in Dickinson. All his other relatives reside in Norway.

Mr. Bull came to North Dakota in 1883 and homesteaded on Custer flats, moving to Mandan five years later and accepted a position with the Northern Pacific as painter in the Mandan shops, holding the position for 34 years. He was retired from service in May because of failing health. He was a member of the Maccabees lodge and the Brotherhood of Railway carmen.

Funeral services will probably be held Thursday afternoon and burial will take place in Mandan. Rev. Gaustad, formerly pastor of the local church, now of Enderlin will assist Rev. Fylling in the services.

Dr. and Mrs. L. Erickson, and son, Howard have returned from a motor trip to Minneapolis and Sherburn, Minn., where they visited with relatives and friends for about two weeks. YOUTH SLAYS

Self in Hog Lot

One of the most gruesome suicides ever committed was that of Harry Hanson, 27, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hanson, who reside 7 1/2 miles west of Sanger, who killed himself by means of a hog in a hog lot where 45 head of hogs were pastured Saturday. The bones were not found until Monday.

For some time he had been employed as a farm hand on the John Lukin place four and a half miles southeast of Fort Clark. Saturday night at about 10 o'clock he wrote a note saying that he intended to kill himself and that "you may or you may not find my body."

Although the family aroused the entire neighborhood and searched they were unable to find any trace of the young man. Monday morning Emil Iverson, farmer of the Fort Clark district, found the skull and torso bones, stripped clean, lying in a corner of the hog lot.

Worries over the financial condition of the Hanson family of which he was the main support was thought to be the cause of the suicide. The mortgage on the Hanson farm was to be foreclosed in fifteen days and he nor his father had money to prevent the action.

MARKET NEWS

HEAVY SELLING

LOWERS PRICES

Considerable Liquidation on

The Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Aug. 29.—Further liquidation was on grain futures at the outset today and wheat took a downward slant during the early dealings, September going below the one dollar mark. Offerings, however, were met with an improving demand. Hope of a more favorable settlement between France and Germany was expressed in the cable news and this served to give the market an easy undertone. Liverpool quotations were lower but weakness there had little influence on this side of the Atlantic as the break abroad was attributed to yesterday's decline in our market. Light rains were reported to have fallen throughout all sections of the grain belt and these also served to dampen bullish sentiment. The growing wheat crop in Argentina was reported to have been further benefited by additional rains. Opening prices which were one-eighth to one-half lower with December $1.04 1/2 to $1.04 3/4, and May $1.10 1/2 to $1.10 3/4, were followed by a further decline on all deliveries and then a slight recovery.

Profit taking orders later absorbed the offerings and brought about a sharp rally which resulted in recoveries of part of the earlier losses. At the finish prices were unchanged to 25 cents lower, with December $1.05 5/8 to $1.04 3/4 and May $1.10 5/8 to $1.10 3/4.

"We are law ridden so there is little legislation that is necessary. Price fixing is a fallacy. New laws to expand credit are not necessary. The farmer needs an income to aid him in liquidating and only sound business methods will make agriculture pay. The cheap demagogues who urge a law for every farm ill merely want to get votes, they don't pay the bill and don't care for results.
"I believe the farm bloc is composed of shysters and political tricksters. They (1) accomplish nothing for the farmer. What the farmer needs is a representation in congress that will be for the whole people and not for any class."

Mr. Benz made a strong plea to retain the middleman stating that outside of the unnecessary middleman and the profiteer the farmer needed the banker, the railroad and other agents of distribution.
"You are bigger than they are," he said "in a business way."
"Take use of them while you give your time to more important and more profitable things. They can be made to be your agents in the orderly marketing of your products. The hope of America rests chiefly upon the man who tills the soil."

Earl J. Smith, secretary of the American City Bureau, was a guest, and urged upon the farmers greater appreciation of Association of Commerce work.

F. O. Crawford, Rhodes scholar from this state, told of his impression of the Englishman and the Englishman's conception of the American.

T. R. Atkinson was properly initiated into the grandfathers class his fine being $1.00 for the new won distinction.

Leonard Bell read a pathetic letter from a German business man who wanted him to finance his wedding. At present rate of German exchange, he wrote that it would be twenty years before he could marry. It was suggested that the two distinguished bachelors of Rotary, J. L. Bell and Gov. Nestor go fifty-fifty on the $2,500 loan requested. The letter was addressed to the richest man in Bismarck and found its way to President Duemeland of the Rotary club.

Two birthdays were celebrated and suitable gifts were given to A. F. Bradley by Henry Murphy and to Theo. Quarnud by Ed. Perry.

The following were guests of honor:

Earl J. Smith, Chicago; O. Ebeloff, W. E. Sellen, Chas. Swenson, M. G. Ward, Randall Ross Boyd, A. R. Pauker, S. E. Turner, W. E. Breen, F. Benz, W. A. McDonald, F. H. Walters, John Obow, Joe McClusky, Franz H. Crawford, H. A. Brandes, W. G. Black.

BANKERS FOR EXTRA SESSION

Adopt Resolution in Meeting Held in Fargo

Fargo, Aug. 29.—Resolutions calling for an extra session of congress to establish a governmental agency to bring about an emergency measure an orderly marketing of the wheat crop were made and adopted at the conference on farm problems held yesterday by 800 bankers, farmers, and businessmen representing six states in the Ninth Federal Reserve district in session at the North Dakota Agricultural college. L. B. Hanna, former governor of North Dakota presided.

Bankers from the reserve district pledged themselves through the resolutions to send a committee to present the recommendations of the conference to the administration in Washington. Besides this act of resolutions, which is to be presented at Washington, a supplementary set was passed pledging the conference in favor of a reduction of wheat acreage, of diversification of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, the orderly marketing of farm products, and assistance by bankers in a plan for providing storage facilities for the farmers' crops.

6 ITALIANS ASSASSINATED

(By the Associated Press.)
Rome, Aug. 29.—The assassination of five Italian members of the Greco-Albanian boundary mission has created a profound impression here and it is announced that the government has already taken "the severe measures the extraordinary gravity of the situation warrants."

70 PER CENT OF PHONE MONEY PAID IN WAGES

Approximately 70 percent of the operating revenues of the two big telephone companies operating in North Dakota is paid to employees within the state, according to findings of the state railroad commission in its general investigation into the rates and charges of the Northwestern Bell and the North Dakota Independent Telephone Company, which rates it announced yesterday were not unreasonable.

"Studies have been made to determine what percent of the total operating expense charged to the State of North Dakota went to employees in this state for wages," says the commission's decision. "As near as can be ascertained approximately 70 percent of the total operating expenses, not including taxes, go to employees as wage payments. Economies have been effected by closing small exchanges and connecting them to nearby large exchanges, this materially reducing expenses. Changes in organization, effective April 1, 1923, have been made, which are designed to reduce expenses and yet preserve efficient service. With the telephone company on the alert to practice economy, and with improved conditions over those of 1922, we are of the opinion that the toll and exchange rates now in effect will yield a sufficient revenue to provide for the necessary operating expenses, depreciation and a reasonable return upon the fair value of the property as found in this report and opinion."

"Most of the telephone service in the larger cities of the state is supplied by the North Dakota Independent Telephone Company, with 35 or more exchanges, and the Northwestern Bell Company with 90 or more.

control, asked the state commission in 1919 to approve rates which had been established by the Postmaster-General. This the commission did pending investigation. Subsequent hearings were held and on August 16, 1920, the commission issued its order approving the then existing rates and approved the moving charges and serving connection charges. In August, 1920, the phone companies filed a petition for an increase in rates. On April 9, 1921, the application was denied and further hearings ordered. In July, 1921, the phone companies took their case to the federal court, alleging the rates to be confiscatory, and obtained an interlocutory injunction restraining the railroad commission from enforcing the schedule of rates it had prescribed. The schedules authorized have been in effect since, with the case resting in federal court, and in July the railroad commission held a general investigation into the rates. The rates as prescribed by the court now are held reasonable.

Earnings Given
The decision recites that E. H.

Morris, chief engineer for the commission, made an investigation to determine the book cost of the phone companies, with accountants. He found the book cost of the N. D. Independent Telephone Company to be $1,422,562.20 and that of the Northwestern Bell (formerly the North-western Telephone Exchange) to be $4,139,511.23. The commission added $35,000 for working capital in the first named valuation and $150,000 in the latter. The railroad commission found the N. D. Independent was making 4.52 percent return upon the book cost of the company while the return of the Northwestern Bell was found to be 4.21 percent.

It is expected as a result of the decision the case pending in federal court will be declared ended. The commission, in its decision, states that its finding that the companies were not making an unreasonable return was with regard to the companies as a whole, and that the order may be notified if it is found individual companies are making more than a reasonable return.

NEW PROGRAM FOR A. OF C. IS PROPOSED HERE

Said Mr. Bradley had shown vision and ability.
Directors' Duty
Reminded directors of great duty placed on them by membership. Declared directors were receiving big pay—not in money but in the satisfaction that their time given to the city of Bismarck was yielding big community dividends. Said A. of C. always would be in minority of population; therefore, it should be educational, to lead public opinion. Urged directors to be "stiff-backed" and if a thing was right for Bismarck and if it was right for the organization to support it, regardless of whose toes were trampled on.
Mr. Smith compared the present organization to the old organization a year ago. The old organization had 138 members; the present 485. He found that the A. of C. had three more members than when the campaign was finished a year ago, which he said was splendid in view of the fact that several had moved from the city. There was a comparatively small delinquency, he found, and on recommendation committees started out to remove this today.
Mr. Smith will leave tonight for Fargo to pay an official visit to the Commercial Club there, the American City Bureau having reorganized it.

Miss Bernice Bell of London, England arrived in Mandan Monday for an extended visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. Fred Koettke.
A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Koettke yesterday.
Glen Gray left today for White Earth, North Dakota, where he has accepted a position as manager of an elevator at that place. Mrs. Gray and daughter will leave next week to join Mr. Gray, at which place they will make their future home.
Miss Clemence Wirtz who has been spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wirtz and her sister, Mrs. Gilbert Baker of Hankinson who has been here for several weeks has gone to the Twin Cities to visit with friends.
Frank Dowd left Monday for Eagle Grove, Ia., where he has been called by the death of his brother, Charles of Elk Point. S. D. Burial will take place in Iowa.

MARKET NEWS HEAVY SELLING LOWERS PRICES

Considerable Liquidation on The Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Aug. 29.—Further liquidation was on grain futures at the outset today and wheat took a downward slant during the first dealings, September going below the one dollar mark. Offerings, however, were met with an improved demand. Hope of a more favorable settlement between France and Germany was expressed in the cable news and this served to give the market an undertone. Liverpool quotations were lower but weakness there was little influence on this side of the Atlantic as the break abroad was attributed to yesterday's decline in our market. Light rains were reported to have fallen throughout all sections of the grain belt and these also served to dampen bullish sentiment. The growing wheat crop in Argentina was reported to have been further benefited by additional rains. Opening prices which were one-eighth to one-half lower with December $1.04 1/2 to $1.04 3/4 and May $1.10 1/2 to $1.10 3/4 were followed by a further decline on all deliveries and then a slight recovery. Profit taking orders later absorbed the offerings and brought about a sharp rally which resulted in recoveries of part of the earlier losses. At the finish prices were unchanged to 25 cents lower, with December $1.05 5/8 to $1.04 3/4 and May $1.10 5/8 to $1.10 3/4.

ACREAGE OF SPRING WHEAT SHOWN LARGER

Greater in 1923 Than 1922 in Spite of Previous Reports, Durum Drops

Wheat planted to hard spring wheat in North Dakota actually increased this year while there was a sharp drop in acreage of durum wheat, according to statistics compiled in the office of Commissioner of Agriculture and Labor J. A. Kachen, based upon assessors' reports. Last spring it was generally reported that the acreage had decreased.
The acreage of hard spring wheat is placed at 4,830,542 for 1923 as compared to 4,821,335 for 1922 while the acreage of durum for 1923 is given as 5,512,701 as compared to 3,262,421 last year. The acreage of winter wheat fall is put at 38,923 as compared to an actual winter wheat acreage of 25,180 last year.
Statistics, however, show that North Dakota is not putting the acreage in wheat she did a few years ago. The highest spring wheat acreage recorded was in 1911 when it amounted to 6,851,870. The spring wheat acreage harvested from 1901 to 1921 and yield per acre is given as follows:

Tire Used As Decoy To Stop Autoist

Minot, N. D., Aug. 29.—Stopping his auto, while traveling at night, to go back for an auto tire which he had sighted lying in the road, Wm. Johnson of Douglas, not only could not find the tire but saw a man jump from the ditch and drive his (Johnson's) car away, while three other men, emerging from behind bushes, ordered Johnson to stop. Instead, he ran, outdistancing his pursuers, and arriving at a farmhouse telephoned the Ward county sheriff.
Johnson's auto was found abandoned alongside the road about a mile from the tire decoy scene. The tire was found in the ditch with a string attached to it. Johnson believes robbery was the intent of the men.

ANNEX WILL MOVE INTO NEW QUARTERS

The Annex Cafe will be moved from its present location to the center of Bismarck's business district into one of the new buildings being reconstructed out of the buildings formerly occupied by the Bismarck Motor Company on Broadway.
The change in location is being made to gain more commodious quarters and a central location in the business district of the city. The new cafe which will be known as "The Frederick" will be operated by Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Bobb, and the location with it will be called "The Broadway Coffee Shop." Mr. Bobb expects to remove his fixtures into his new location about October 1.
Work in remodeling the old motor shop into a modern cafe building is already under way. About $10,000 will be spent on the entire building. "The Frederick" will have a larger frontage than the present Annex Cafe and will contain more tables. The ventilation system will be the very latest, skylights, in addition to five outside ventilators furnishing the large dining room with plenty of light and fresh air. Mr. Bobb said that he expected to make "The Frederick" or the old Annex, the coziest and most homelike cafe in town.
A small balcony in the back part of the dining room will be back part of the dining room will be

THREE STORES ARE ENTERED

Robbers entered the Parks' General store in Sterling last night, tried to open the safe, failed and left apparently without stealing anything, according to word received at the office of Sheriff Albin Hedstrom today. The robbers also entered two other stores and got nothing, it is believed.
Both cafe and coffee shop will have complete glass fronts and as much of the preparation of food as possible will be in view of patrons.—Adv.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

PRIZE WINNER

In a Pullman smoking compartment we heard a very rich man boasting that he had won a season baseball pass in a "guessing contest" conducted by a newspaper.

"I worked nights for a week," he chuckled, "and darned if I didn't hit it just right!"

In a rough way we know the amount of this man's wealth, by reputation, and we figure that it cost him at least $500 worth of time to win the prize that he could have bought for less than $100. Of course, he worked it out in spare time, but spare time is valuable to him because it is needed for relaxation from brain work. Then, too, obsessed with winning the prize, he probably had it on his mind, detracting his attention from his occupation during general working hours of the day.

Eliminate the cash end, it doesn't matter much. For he'd have been just as elated if he had won a prize of $1.

How do you explain this rich man's jubilation over a victory that wasn't worth the price it cost—to him?

Your first explanation probably is, "He got something for nothing."

There is no thrill like finding money—getting it without effort. Probably this is a reaction from the enslaving system that keeps our noses to the grindstone. The average millionaire gets a bigger thrill from finding a $5 goldpiece than from cleaning up $1000 in a business deal. And, no matter how valuable his time, he'll delay whatever he was intent on, and search the premises to see if more $5 goldpieces are nearby.

You know how this weakness persists in our subconscious minds and rises to the conscious surface during dreams in which we find coin after coin until our pockets are filled.

"Something for nothing" is the lure that wastes time and takes the suckers' savings.

A greater motive than "something for nothing," however, animated the rich man in the baseball guessing contest. His thrill, as victor, came mostly from the realization that in winning he demonstrated cleverness superior to that of the other contestants.

In a battle of wits, he won.

That is the motive of your "business genius," as much as and often more than the actual accumulation of profits.

Vanity—pride—is our motive in the things we do, a lot of us, and to greater extent than any of us realize.

D. T. & I.

Ford will spend 20 to 30 million dollars for complete electrification of the D. T. & I. It's 455 miles long, so the cost of electrifying a steam railroad averages $40,000 to $60,000 a mile.

Our country has around 264,000 miles of railroads. To electrify them would cost from 10 to 16 billion dollars, at the Ford rate.

That would be expensive or cheap, according to economies that would or would not result. The amount invested should never worry anybody. The important question is: "Will it be a paying investment?"

The first link of the D. T. & I. to be electrified is about 13 miles long. In a sense, it's probably a laboratory experiment. With 13 miles finished, Henry will have discovered a lot of things to avoid in electrifying the remaining 442 miles.

By using current on a big scale—500,000 horsepower at work, night and day—Ford expects to cut his electric power cost to a tenth of what it is now.

It is logical to expect that all American railroads will be electrified eventually. The coal probably will be burned at the mines, generating electric current to be sent to far distances over high tension wires—or by radio transmission, who knows? A system like this is the dream of a great many scientists who are trying to solve the coal problem. They vision a day when the whole nation will be on an electrical basis with the power derived from coal burned at the mines, incidentally saving tremendous coal freight hauls.

Ford climbed to the top by making autos. It will be interesting to see if he rounds out his career by becoming as big in the railroad business as he is in the auto industry.

His whole life seems to revolve around the problem of cheap, fast transportation.

THE LURE

Around the booking offices where they hire actors for vaudeville, there's a saying: "When they can sing they want to dance, and when they can dance they want to sing."

Quite a bit of psychology there, in a few words.

No matter how successful or happy we may be, we always cherish a notion that we would be more successful and happier doing something else. For instance, there's an old saying that every reader thinks he could get out a better newspaper than the editor. The editor at times is willing to concede that maybe they're right.

When they can paint and draw great pictures, they want to fish. And when they can fish, they want to paint and draw. Nearly every Indian, expert at fishing, wants to be an artist. And is, in his crude, half-barbaric way.

Yes, no matter how successful and happy we are, we always imagine that we could be more successful and happier at something else. All of which may be "kidding ourselves." But it expresses the spirit of discontent, restlessness, that makes civilization progress steadily.

Dissatisfaction with present condition is what makes humanity create a better condition for the future. The dissatisfaction often takes queer forms, but this doesn't change the general principle.

THE BULL'S EYE
By The Sharp-Shooter

In all our cities building operations are on the gallop. On the farms they are at a standstill. Even point is not being spread upon the fading coats of the farm houses and barns. Everyone is busy on the farm, but not on construction work. They are busy raising crops that do not pay much if any profit to the grower. Deterioration in farm houses, barns and fences faces you at every turn of the road. But once inside the city limits, or in the suburbs where city worker live, new stores, new bungalows, new banks, new filling stations, public and private garages, new additions to small homes, new homes of the highest class rise up in every direction. If one sees a new building going up in the country, the chances are that the builder is drawing some of his income from the city. Why is there such a difference between country and city?

Building costs are high for everyone. A carpenter in this city can earn $12 in eight hours. By eight hours work he can earn a 100-pound pig. It takes the farmer eight months to grow such a pig. If the farmer makes a profit of 10 per cent on this pig (that is, $120), it will be necessary for him to raise a herd of 2,000 hogs to make as much money in eight months as the carpenter gets. The carpenter can work eight hours of the day, sleep eight hours and the other eight hours sit on the porch and smoke with his feet on the rug. The farmer would have to spend all his waking hours in the hog lot swamped in hogs. A half township could hardly hold the hogs that would represent the earnings of one carpenter.

In fact, there is a young chap who went last spring to San Francisco to take a six-weeks' course in a plasterers' school. He came home and got a steady job. He works six days in the week, getting double pay for Saturday afternoon. And every Saturday evening he receives an envelope containing $104. With the week's earnings he can buy at the farm store here, ten 100-pound pigs, or an acre of average wheat, or a ton of blackberries, or sweet herries, the big black ones that sell for 50 cents a pound on the raft stand, or 100 boxes of apples or five tons of Bartlett pears at the price my crop is selling right now. Talk of a mouse swimming in cream! Could this plasterer consider striking for anything better? He could. He could, but his present job beats farming.

Can conditions like this last forever? They cannot. This country cannot exist forever, one half fat and one half lean. The farm and the factory will some day level up. It may be slow process. But it will be the father of all the young farmers. I would hurry that leveling. I would call the boys in one of these fine mornings and would say: "Boys pack up your duffels and hike to town. Get the best jobs you can find and get a station in a garage, in an auto-parts shop, in a department store, a jewelry store, or as common laborer on the street—or go for six weeks to some trade school and learn to be a plumber, hang paper, paint, get your while the getting is good and stick to it till wages come down below the farm level. Then if you have something permanent that is better than farming, stick to it. If not, come back home. While you are gone father will put the plow land down to grass, run a little flock of sheep and a bunch of steers, a few cows and chickens; and mother and I will get along some way. I would flood the town till they were sick of it and till they were fighting to get what little farm produce was raised." (Commercial West)

BOYHOOD HEROES

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRES-COTT TO JOHN ALDEN

I am sitting here, dearest, beside the window while near me lying on some pillows in the great armchair where you were wont to loiter, is your son. Don't think me foolish, dear, but sometimes I think he is going to look like you.

I was so glad to get your letter, husband, mine, in which you said that you were going to think of this child in the future only as John Alden Prescott, Jr. To me it is just the same as though I had borne him. I am sure that I know no difference, but I was afraid, Jack, afraid that you, down deep in your heart, would some time regret that this darling baby-boy was not in reality yours.

However, I am also going to forget and I never intend to mention it again unless something comes up of which I do not know now.

Father sent me a thousand dollars the other day, Jack, and you don't know how it has relieved my mind. Of course, dear boy, you are not expected to know what it costs to run a house, but I have found since I returned from the hospital that things have been going rather at sixes and sevens in our little apartment.

Oh how the bills did pile up! Now I will be able to pay them all! You say you have made such a nice commission in New York so I am sure we will be on Easy Street again.

I miss you, oh how I miss you! I didn't think it was possible that I could be as lonely with both mother and dad here—dad came home the day you left—with you gone.

Last night I dreamed that I was pinning a crepe veil about my hat and I awakened sobbing and crying because, in some vague way it seemed to me that you were the one for whom I was wearing mourning.

Right here, dear Jack, I stopped to kneel down beside our blessed baby. I really believe he knows me. He opened his eyes and his tiny mouth puckered up like a little crushed rose bud. I couldn't resist it. I grabbed him and almost smothered him with kisses and he never cried. Instead his moist little mouth seemed to respond to my caresses as he nestled up close against my neck. Oh, he is the sweetest thing that was ever sent to comfort a heart-sick woman!

You can tell Sydney Carton for me that if he does not come up here within the next few weeks I will not let him be godfather to my boy. I, you know, will act as proxy for my sister.

By the way, I have had a letter from Alice. She is having a wonderful time. Mother proposed to me yesterday that she and I should go over and come back with her. At any time in my life before this I should have accepted the invitation with the greatest joy, but now I couldn't go, dear Jack. I couldn't leave my Man and Child.

Nothing I could see in all Europe would be so wonderful as looking into your eyes and seeing love there. Nothing that I could hold in my hands, even if they were one crown jewels of England, could make me as happy as to put my arms around my baby.

I am glad you are coming home soon dear.

Love,
LESLIE.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

"I want you to take your magic shoes and go out west," said the Fairy Queen to Nancy and Nick when they had returned from their last adventure. "You don't mind going, do you?"

"No indeed!" said Nancy.

"What's it like?" Nick wanted to know.

"Well, I'll tell you, as you haven't got that far in your geography yet," said the Fairy Queen kindly.

"First of all there are great flat places called plains that stretch from sky to sky, or as far as you can see one way to as far as you

THE YELLOW SEVEN
Run to Earth

NEA Service, Inc. 1923

By Edmund Snell

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

Captain John Hewitt is Commissioner of Police at Jesselton, British North Borneo. His beautiful sister, Monica Viney, is engaged to marry Peter Pennington, detective. Pennington is detailed by the government to apprehend Chai-Hung, leader of The Yellow Seven, a gang of Chinese bandits. Pennington is assisted by his chief-of-staff, Rabbit-Pilai, who hates the bandit chief bitterly. Pennington heads an expedition to capture Chai-Hung. They move toward the bandit's latest hiding place.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Brought anything to sleep on?" "My boy is in sole possession of a tartan traveling-rug and a waterproof sheet. The rug is inside the waterproof sheet, so it's bound to be dry."

"Well, that's good enough, isn't it?"

Dawson sighed heavily. "It would be, if I knew where the young idiot was. Unfortunately, we lost one another a decent while back and I've a notion at the back of my head he's made himself a bivouac somewhere out of the ground-sheet and is peacefully slumbering with my rug round his dirty shoulders."

Pennington surveyed the other dubiously.

"Suppose I'll have to fix you up."

"What part do you want to take in the show tomorrow? How does the first storming party appeal to you?"

"It doesn't. I've put myself down already for the forlorn hope—when everything else has failed, and I've sufficient confidence in you to refuse to believe in failure. How many of these things am I supposed to take?"

"There's a good number. Hello! here's Clay."

Dawson nodded toward the opening.

"Evening, Clay!"

"Evening, Dawson! I say, Pennington, didn't you say the sign of the yellow Seven was a warning of death?"

"That's right. Why?"

"Well, when I left you I walked straight to where I'd left my kit. The orderly had fixed up the tent and laid out my bed. It's a sleepin'-bag, y'know, and he's never quite got the hang of it. I turned back the cover to see what he'd done—and there was this underneath."

He dropped on the deal table a yellow Chinese playing-card with seven black dots on the upper surface.

Pennington picked it up.

"Good Lord! Have you tackled your man?"

"That's the devil of it. I can't find him anywhere."

Pennington strode to the opening and peered out.

"Dawson had better stop here," he jerked back over his shoulder. "Clay, you and I'll embark upon a tour of inspection. There's a weak point somewhere—and it's up to us to find it."

The district officer had drawn the blanket over his head until he resembled an Indian squaw.

"I suppose I'm in full charge while you're away and am at liberty to help myself to the bottle? While fully realizing the necessity for visiting outposts on the eve of battle, I must excuse me I know if I suggest you've both got the wind-up for nothing!"

The man at the opening swung round on his wheel.

"How do you make that out?"

"Dawson met his gaze without finching."

"You're on the verge of tumbling into the nearest little trap our worst antagonist has ever planned. Because Chai-Hung has succeeded in communicating with the outer world, it doesn't imply that he had to find a flaw in the line to do so. You're indordinately proud of your jungle telegraph. The Yellow Seven probably employ a system that is equally efficient. A friend beyond the charmed circle is communicated with. He drops a card casually in the enemy's camp—in a place where it can hardly fail to be noticed. Result—panic at G. H. Q. tons of mistrust everywhere and two otherwise sane British officers engaging in the pleasant occupation of traitor-hunting on the wettest night we've had for months!"

"Come on, Clay," shouted Pennington, whose irritability had taken him out of earshot.

"Wait half a minute. I fancy Dawson's on the right track."

"Oh!—what is it?"

"Just this," murmured the D. O. "The dispatch from Hewitt was several days late. You remember I remarked on it. The runner was one of Chai-Hung's agents. He wormed his way up from the rear, using the message as his passport, slipped into Clay's tent and came on to you afterwards. The bandit is a pretty subtle beast, you know, and there's nothing so good as getting your opponent rattled at the start."

The tall man nodded approval and the hard lines vanished from Pennington's forehead.

can see the other way. They have no hills, but there are lumpy places here and there with funny names. They aren't high enough to be called hills. They are called buttes. If they are flat on top they are called mesas. Nothing much grows on the plains but sagebrush—a low, gray-looking bush—and in some places grass."

"Well, I shouldn't think any one would want to live there!" said Nick.

"Oh, but they do," nodded the Fairy Queen brightly. "Loads of people. And they build lovely towns where there is plenty of water, for wherever there is water things grow in fine style. Besides that they have big farms called ranches where they have cows and horses and sheep. The plains are wonderful, but the place I want you to go to is a more wonderful still, for it's where the

"The runner from Hewitt! I never thought of that! We'll interview Rabbit-Pilai on our way round. I don't like the idea of that fellow wandering about with all that information with regard to our movements," remarked Pennington. He's in possession of a note signed by myself, into the bargain. Heaven only knows what use he intends to make of it."

The deluge had given way to a steady downpour as the two men passed Clay's tent.

The taller man, who was following close upon Pennington's heels, stepped aside to avoid a stump and hit his foot against something soft and bulky.

"I say, Pennington!—just a second!"

The other stopped and came slowly by.

"He found Clay stooping over a prostrate form."

"What's the matter?"

"I'm not quite sure. There's a fellow here—yes, by Jove, with a knife stuck in his back. Confound it, the moon's gone in! Got a light?"

An electric flash-lamp threw a narrow silver ray.

Clay came to his feet.

"Dawson was right," he said quietly. "He was dead right."

"Who is it?"

"My orderly—that's all!"

Dawson moved restlessly in his sleep, then sat bolt upright. A hurricane was blowing outside.

He rubbed his eyes and yawned. He was still in sole possession of Pennington's tent. He consulted his watch. It was close on three.

Suddenly—borne on the wings of the wind—there wafted to his ears the sound of rapid firing, a babel of discordant cries, and something scared through the material above his head with a spiteful, significant zip. And then—from somewhere close at hand—came the deep dropping note of a Dunsun gong.

"Hell!" ejaculated the District Officer—and began lacing up his boots with nervous haste. He raked out his tunic and mackintosh, felt to see that his automatic was there, and plunged for the open.

The night was dark with shadowy, fitting forms, with blazing torches, the incessant rattle of musketry. And still the deep-throated noise to its warning message into the darkness.

He splashed his way through the trees, lit upon a bunch of bare-footed native soldiers that happened to be taking no useful part in the fray, and in breathless haste hastened toward the spot from which the alarm seemed to originate.

"Get down—all of you," he shouted—and fell on his hands almost on top of Clay, whose long legs trailed from behind a rock and whose cheek was pressed against a rifle-stock.

"That you, Dawson? Pennington's round on the far side at last only other possible point for them to break through."

Clay's rifle spoke.

"That was a beauty, Dawson. We've been at it for about an hour. The enemy achieved a minor success at the outset. Caught our rear defenses napping and a dozen or so, carrying something on a pole, managed to scale the far side of the way through and join the main body. The Yellow Seven opened up to cover their approach—and we decided to attack."

He fired again. "We're advancing gradually all along the line. I've promised to take the slope at the point of the bayonet before dawn."

He showed to someone behind and a rifle was raised against Dawson's elbow. His eye fell at the same moment upon a pile of chips at Clay's side. He thrust one into the magazine.

"Chai-Hung's still up there, I suppose?"

"As far as I'm aware, nobody's broken out. I can't for the life of me imagine what it was the smuggled in. It was evidently something important, because they weren't inclined to save rounds to secure its safety."

He glanced behind him. "Your fellows should be pretty fresh by now. I fancy I'll try a sortie with my own chaps—and you can follow with the second wave, mopping up everything we've left behind."

"I'll toss you for it," suggested Dawson.

"Be hanged to you!" laughed the other. "I'm in command here. I'm going to handle the first attack."

R. N. STEVENS PLANS TRIP AROUND WORLD

Pioneer of State and Former Editor of Tribune Leaves Soon

R. N. Stevens of Minnawaukan, member of the North Dakota constitutional convention and editor of the Bismarck Tribune for two years, will leave on a trip around the world in the near future.

While the late M. H. Jewel was editing the "Inventive Age" in Washington, D. C., Mr. Stevens was sole editor of the Tribune, his name appearing on the Editorial page. During his service on the Tribune the Populist movement was sweeping the country. Coxie's army was invited by Governor Shortridge to pay the state a visit, and the big fight in the election of Judge Bartholemew took place. The Populists movement was very similar to the Nonpartisan League movement which has swept over the west and middle west in the past few years. It was during the excitement of these strenuous times that Mr. Stevens adopted the policy of signed editorials.

Autumn Styles Are Interesting!

Coats, Suits and Frocks this season are amazingly tiered and pleated, for to be smart one must have one or the other.

You may be sure of finding faithful portrayals of the newest modes, cleverly interpreted to suit the individual.

In the new vogue for longer garments this Fall, the short garments of last year will look conspicuous and ridiculous. It is easy to shorten a coat or a frock, but it's hard to lengthen it. You will want one of the new long garments before very long, so why not make your selections now while stocks are fresh.

Our showing comprises a wide range of styles and prices. Your selection is not confined to a few garments but you have the pick of the choicest things shown in the Eastern Fashion Centers. Come in tomorrow, we'll gladly show you through.

Why He Called It "Portland" Cement

In 1824, an English mason wanted to produce a better cement than any then in use. To do this he burned finely ground clay and limestone together at a high heat. The hard balls (called clinker) that resulted were ground to a fine powder. When a mixture of this dull gray powder with water had hardened, it was the color of a popular building stone quarried on the Isle of Portland off the coast of England. So this mason, Joseph Aspdin, called his discovery "portland" cement.

That was less than one hundred years ago.

Portland cement was not made in the United States until fifty years ago. The average annual production for the ten years following was only 36,000 sacks. Last year the country used over 470,000,000 sacks of portland cement. Capacity to manufacture was nearly 600,000,000 sacks.

Cement cannot be made everywhere because raw materials of the necessary chemical composition are not found in sufficient quantities in every part of the country. But it is now manufactured in 27 states by 120 plants. There is at least one of these plants within shipping distance of any community in this country.

To provide a cement supply that would always be ample to meet demand has meant a good deal in costly experience to those who have invested in the cement industry. There have been large capital investments with low returns.

In the last twenty-five years, 328 cement plants have been built or have gone through some stage of construction or financing. 162 were completed and placed in operation.

Only 120 of these plants have survived the financial, operating and marketing risks of that period. Their capacity is nearly 30 per cent greater than the record year's demand.

These are a few important facts about an industry that is still young. Advertisements to follow will give you more of these facts, and will tell something of the important place cement occupies in the welfare of every individual.

R. N. STEVENS PLANS TRIP AROUND WORLD

Pioneer of State and Former Editor of Tribune Leaves Soon

R. N. Stevens of Minnewaukan, member of the North Dakota constitutional convention and editor of the Bismarck Tribune for two years, will leave on a trip around the world in the near future.

Mr. Stevens who has been visiting at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Burt Finney, expects to sail from New York to London and take the Nile river trip through Egypt.

While the late M. H. Jewel was editing the "Inventive Age" in Washington, D. C., Mr. Stevens was sole editor of the Tribune, his name appearing on the Editorial page. During his service on the Tribune the Populist movement was sweeping the country. Coxie's army was invited by Governor Shortridge to pay the state a visit, and the big fight in the election of Judge Bartholomew took place. The Populist movement was very similar to the Nonpartisan League movement which has swept over the west and middle west in the past few years. It was during the excitement of those strenuous times that Mr. Stevens adopted the policy of signed editorials.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

PRIZE WINNER

In a Pullman smoking compartment we heard a very rich man boasting that he had won a season baseball pass in a "guessing contest" conducted by a newspaper.

"I worked nights for a week," he chuckled, "and darned if I didn't hit it just right!"

In a rough way we know the amount of this man's wealth, by reputation, and we figure that it cost him at least $500 worth of time to win the prize that he could have bought for less than $100. Of course, he worked it out in spare time, but spare time is valuable to him because it is needed for relaxation from brain work. Then, too, obsessed with winning the prize, he probably had it on his mind, detracting his attention from his occupation during general working hours of the day.

Eliminate the cash end, it doesn't matter much. For he'd have been just as elated if he had won a prize of $1.

How do you explain this rich man's jubilation over a victory that wasn't worth the price it cost—to him?

Your first explanation probably is, "He got something for nothing."

There is no thrill like finding money—getting it without effort. Probably this is a reaction from the enslaving system that keeps our noses to the grindstone. The average millionaire gets a bigger thrill from finding a $5 goldpiece than from cleaning up $1000 in a business deal. And, no matter how valuable his time, he'll delay whatever he was intent on, and search the premises to see if more $5 goldpieces are nearby.

You know how this weakness persists in our subconscious minds and rises to the conscious surface during dreams in which we find coin after coin until our pockets are filled.

"Something for nothing" is the lure that wastes time and takes the suckers' savings.

A greater motive than "something for nothing," however, animated the rich man in the baseball guessing contest. His thrill, as victor, came mostly from the realization that in winning he demonstrated cleverness superior to that of the other contestants.

In a battle of wits, he won.

That is the motive of your "business genius," as much as and often more than the actual accumulation of profits.

Vanity—pride—is our motive in the things we do, a lot oftener and to greater extent than any of us realize.

D. T. & L.

Ford will spend 20 to 30 million dollars for complete electrification of the D. T. & L. It's 455 miles long, so the cost of electrifying a steam railroad averages $40,000 to $60,000 a mile.

Our country has around 264,000 miles of railroads. To electrify them would cost from 10 to 16 billion dollars, at the Ford rate.

That would be expensive or cheap, according to economics that would or would not result. The amount invested should never worry anybody. The important question is: "Will it be a paying investment?"

The first link of the D. T. & L. to be electrified is about 13 miles long. In a sense, it's probably a laboratory experiment. With 13 miles finished, Henry will have discovered a lot of things to avoid in electrifying the remaining 442 miles.

By using current on a big scale—500,000 horsepower at work, night and day—Ford expects to cut his electric power cost to a tenth of what it is now.

It is logical to expect that all American railroads will be electrified eventually. The coal probably will be burned at the mines, generating electric current to be sent to far distances over high tension wires—or by radio transmission, who knows? A system like this is the dream of a great many scientists who are trying to solve the coal problem. They vision a day when the whole nation will be on an electrical basis with the power derived from coal burned at the mines, incidentally saving tremendous coal freight hauls.

Ford climbed to the top by making autos. It will be interesting to see if he rounds out his career by becoming as big in the railroad business as he is in the auto industry.

His whole life seems to revolve around the problem of cheap, fast transportation.

THE LURE

Around the booking offices where they hire actors for vaudeville, there's a saying: "When they can sing they want to dance, and when they can dance they want to sing."

Quite a bit of psychology there, in a few words.

No matter how successful or happy we may be, we always cherish a notion that we would be more successful and happier doing something else. For instance, there's an old saying that every reader thinks he could get out a better newspaper than the editor. The editor at times is willing to concede that maybe they're right.

When they can paint and draw great pictures, they want to fish. And when they can fish, they want to paint and draw. Nearly every Indian, expert at fishing, wants to be an artist. And, in his crude, half-barbaric way.

Yes, no matter how successful and happy we are, we always imagine that we could be more successful and happier at something else. All of which may be "kidding ourselves." But it expresses the spirit of discontent, restlessness, that makes civilization progress steadily.

Dissatisfaction with present condition is what makes humanity create a better condition for the future. The dissatisfaction often takes queer forms, but this doesn't change the general principle.

THE BULL'S EYE
By The Sharp-Shooter

In all our cities building operations are on the gallop. On the farms they are at a standstill. Even point is not being spread upon the fading coats of the farm houses and barns. Everyone is busy on the farm, but not on construction work. They are busy raising crops that do not pay much of any profit to the grower. Deterioration in farm houses, barns and fences faces you at every turn of the road. But once inside the city limits, or in the suburbs where the city worker lives, new stores, new bungalows, new banks, new filling stations, public and private garages, new additions to small homes, new homes of the highest class rise up in every direction. If one sees a new building going up in the country, the chances are that the builder is drawing some of his income from the city. Why is there such a difference between country and city?

Building costs are high for everyone. A carpenter in this city can earn $12 in eight hours. By eight hours work he can earn a 100-pound pig. It takes the farmer eight months to grow such a pig. If the farmer makes a profit of 10 per cent on this pig (that is, $120), it will be necessary for him to raise a herd of 2,000 hogs to make as much money in eight months as the carpenter gets. The carpenter can work eight hours of the day, sleep eight hours and the other eight hours sit on the porch and smoke with his feet on the wall. The farmer would have to spend all his waking hours in the hog lot swamped in hogs. A half township could hardly hold the hogs that would represent the earnings of one carpenter.

In this city there is a young chap who went last spring to San Francisco to take a six-week course in a plasterers' school. He came home and got a steady job. He works six days in the week, getting double pay for Saturday afternoon. And every Saturday evening he draws an envelope containing $104. With the week's savings he can buy at the farm store here, ten 100-pound pigs, or an acre of average wheat, or more than a ton of machinery, or a ton of fertilizer, or a ton of sugar, or a ton of anything else that he wants. He is just the same as though he had a mine. I am sure that I know no difference, but I was afraid, Jack afraid that you, down deep in your heart, would sometime regret that this darling baby boy was not in reality yours.

However, I am also going to forget and I never intend to mention it again, unless something comes up of which I do not know now.

Father sent me a thousand dollars the other day, Jack, and you don't know how it has relieved my mind. Of course, dear boy, you are not expected to know what it costs to run a house, but I have found since I returned from the hospital that things have been going rather at sixes and sevens in our little apartment. I would have the bills did pile up! Now I will be able to pay them all! You say you have made such a nice commission in New York, so I am sure we will be on Easy Street again.

I miss you, oh how I miss you! I didn't think it was possible that I could be as lonely with both

KICK MAY BE FATAL

New England, N. D., Aug. 28. (Tele.)—Hemelrig, 23, son of John Hemelrig, farmer living six miles southwest of Amidon, is in a local hospital in a critical condition as the result of a terrific kick in the abdomen received when he walked too close to a riding pony in the barn at the farm home. Internal injuries and rupture of the intestines may result in his death.

NEW LEIPZIG PLACES RAISED

New Leipzig, N. D., Aug. 28. (Tele.)—Thieves raised a C. M. & St. Paul railroad section house, three elevators and the Home Oil company station here Sunday night. Nothing was taken except a quantity of gasoline from the oil station and an oil can from one of the elevators. Officers believe the rail may have been made by the bank robbers who looted the Farmers State bank at Hebron a week ago, and who have been reported hiding in the hills to the south.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO JOHN ALDEN

I am sitting here, dearest, beside the window while near me by lying on some pillows in the great armchair where you were wont to hold me as your son. Don't think me foolish, dear, but sometimes I think I am going to look like you. I was so glad to get your letter, husband, mine, in which you said that you were going to think of this child in the future only as John Alden Prescott, Jr. To me it is just the same as though I had borne him. I am sure that I know no difference, but I was afraid, Jack afraid that you, down deep in your heart, would sometime regret that this darling baby boy was not in reality yours.

"I want you to take your magic shoes and go out west," said the Fairy Queen to Nancy and Nick when they had returned from their last adventure. "You don't mind going, do you?"

"No, indeed!" said Nancy.

"What's it like?" Nick wanted to know.

"Well, I'll tell you, as you have not got that far in your geography yet," said the Fairy Queen kindly.

THE YELLOW SEVEN

Run to Earth

By Edmund Sael

BEGIN HERE TODAY.
Captain John Hewitt is Commissioner of Police at Jesselton, British North Borneo. His beautiful sister, Monica Wines, is engaged to marry Peter Pennington, detective. Pennington is detailed by the government to apprehend Chai-Hung, leader of The Yellow Seven, a gang of Chinese bandits. Pennington is assisted by his chief-of-staff, Babat-Pilat, who hates the bandit chief bitterly. Pennington has an expedition to capture Chai-Hung. They move toward the bandit's latest hiding place.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.
"Brought anything to sleep on?" "My boy is in sole possession of a tartan traveling-rug and a waterproof sheet. The rug is inside the waterproof sheet, so it's bound to be dry."

"Well, that's good enough, isn't it?" Dawson sighed heavily.

"It would be, if I knew where the young idiot was. Unfortunately, we lost one another a decent while back and I've a notion as the back of my head he's made himself a bivouac somewhere out of the ground-sheet and is peacefully slumbering with my rug round his dirty shoulders."

Pennington surveyed the other dubiously.

"Suppose I'll have to fix you up. What part of you want to take in the show tomorrow? How does the first storming party appeal to you?"

"It doesn't. I've sent myself down already for the morning hope—when everything else has failed, and I've sufficient confidence in you to refuse to believe in failure. How many of these things am I supposed to take?"

"There's a good number. Hello! here's Clay."

Dawson nodded toward the opening.

"Evening, Clay!"

"Evening, Dawson! I say, Pennington, didn't you say the sign of the yellow seven was a warning of death?"

"That's right. Why?"

"Well, when I left you I walked straight to where I left my kit. The orderly had fixed up the tent and laid out my bed. It's a sleepin'-bag, y'know, and I never quite got the hang of it. I turned back, however, to see what he'd done—and there was the yellow seven."

Pennington picked it up.

"Good Lord! Have you tackled your man?"

Clay shook his head.

"That's the devil of it. I can't find him anywhere."

Pennington strode to the opening and peered out.

"Dawson had better stop here," he jerked back over his shoulder. "Clay, you and I'll embark upon a tour of inspection. There's a weak point somewhere—and it's up to us to find it."

The district officer had drawn the blanket over his head until he resembled an Indian.

"I suppose I'm in a fall case while you away and am at liberty to help myself to the bottle? While fully realizing the necessity for visiting outposts on the eve of battle, Penn will excuse me if I know if I suggest you've both got the wind-up for nothing!"

The men at the opening swung round on his wheel.

"How'd you make that out?" Dawson met his gaze without flinching.

"You're on the verge of tumbling into the nearest little trap our worthy antagonist has ever planned. Because Chai-Hung has succeeded in communicating with the outer world, it doesn't imply that he had to find a flaw in the line to do so. You're inordinately proud of your jungle telegraph. The Yellow Seven probably employ a system that is equally efficient. A friend beyond the charmed circle is communicated with. He drops a card casually in the enemy's camp—in a place where it can hardly fail to be noticed. Result—panic at G. H. Q., tons of mistrust everywhere and two otherwise sane British officers engaging in the pleasant occupation of traitor-hunting on the west coast of Borneo."

"Come on, Clay!" shouted Pennington, whose irritability had taken him out of earshot.

"Wait half a minute. I fancy Dawson's on the right track."

"Oh!—what is it?"

"Just this," murmured the D. O. "The dispatch from Hewitt was several hours late. You remember I remarked on it. The runner was one of Chai-Hung's agents. He wormed his way up the rear, using the message as his passport, slipped into Clay's tent and came on to you afterward. The bandit is a pretty subtle beast, you know, and there's nothing so good as getting your opponent rattled at the start."

The tall man nodded approval and the hard lines vanished from Pennington's forehead.

can see the other way. They haven't any hills, but there are lumpy places here and there with funny names. They aren't high enough to be called hills. They are called buttes. If they are flat on top they are called mesas. Nothing much grows on the plains but sagebrush—a low, gray-looking bush—and in some places grass."

"Well, I shouldn't think any one would want to live there!" said Nick.

"Oh, but they do," nodded the Fairy Queen brightly. "Loads of people. And they build lovely towns where there is plenty of water, for wherever there is water things grow in fine style. Remember that far in your geography called ranches where they have great big cowboys and horses and sheep."

"First of all there are great flat places called plains that stretch from sky to sky, or as far as you can see one way to as far as you plains run bump into a mountain. There's a beautiful creek with waterfalls where thousands of little speckled fish have a grand time and a lot of cottonwood trees where millions of birds sing, and

"Oh, may we go at once?" cried Nancy, looking at her hands. "I think I should love it out west."

"I think so, too!" smiled the queen. "You'll like it better still when you get there. Take your magic shoes along everywhere you go. And here's a secret! You'll find two ponies tied to a cottonwood tree in a big patch of blue hills at the foot of the mountains."

"Jump on, and they'll take you to a red rock where Mister Gallop, a fairy, lives in a cave. He needs help. That's why I'm sending you."

CUBS VICTORY PUSHES GIANTS DOWN LADDER

League Leaders Again Are Just Three Games Above
Cincinnati Reds

(By the Associated Press.)
Chicago, Aug. 29.—The New York Giants slipped a notch lower, reducing their National League leading margin to three games by losing to the Chicago Cubs at the Polo Grounds yesterday 4 to 1. The venerable Grover Cleveland Alexander let the champions down with five hits.

The Cincinnati Nationals tightened their second place hold by defeating Boston, 4 to 1. Luque allowed the Boston batsmen only three hits.

The Washington Americans won in Detroit when they pounded out three runs in the ninth. The score was 10 to 9.

The St. Louis Nationals took the second game of the series in Philadelphia, 8 to 7, after hammering Coach for 15 hits and a total of 21 bases.

No other games were played in the big leagues, but Babe Ruth, batting in an exhibition in Toronto, knocked a long, clean homer over the fence into Toronto Bay. The Toronto Leafs won the game 8 to 2.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL MEN START TUESDAY

First Practice Will Be Held
Second Day of Opening of
The School Here

With school opening set for next Monday, athletic interest in the Bismarck High School is turned toward the football team. Coach Edgar Houser, who is back in the city preparing for the beginning of practice, will have three or four of last year's stars and many players on last year's squad as a nucleus. Some of the freshmen have shown well on school teams in the city and are expected to make a strong bid for places.

First practice probably will be held next Tuesday afternoon.

Among the players expected to report are Captain Benner, Scott, Alfson, Brown, Jess Scroggins, Lane, Sam Kirk Tony Garske, Norris Fitch, "Fat" Soules, Jimmy Olson, a star on the St. Mary's team, Balzer Kline, Joe Pettig and Witis Shepherd.

It is expected there will be some boys from outside the city who desire to enter Bismarck High School and try for the team. They want to work part of their way through school and must do so if they come. Coach Houser asks that any citizens having jobs which can be performed by such men notify him.

Same Old Team Will Resist Australian Efforts to March Away With Davis Cup

By Roy Grove
NEA Service Writer
New York, Aug. 29.—The Davis cup, international tennis trophy, must be defended again.

And by the simplest computations it will stay in the states.

The same famous team, Norris Williams, William Tilden, Bill Johnson and the youthful Vincent Richards, the Yonkers flash, will do the battling.

These men oppose their old and sincerest enemy in Davis cup play, the Australian team, at Forest Hills.

N. Y., on Aug. 31, Sept. 1 and 3, under the same conditions as last year.

Only three nations have won the famous bowl since competition has started. They're the United States, Great Britain and Australia.

The Australians and the Americans will have to battle off a tie as they have six victories apiece to their credit. Great Britain has held the mug five times.

Belgium and Japan are the only other nations to get to the challenging rounds. Japan in 1921 defeated the Australians. They in turn were walloped by the Americans.

The famous cup has been in competition for nearly 22 years. It has traveled more than 100,000 miles. Dwight Davis was the original donor. The bowl has become so covered with inscriptions that a large tray has been made to hold additional names.

The old reliable doubles, Tilden and Williams, who won the cup from Australia, will bear the burden of the singles, representing this country for their fourth successive year. They've never been defeated.

Campaign Made To Collect Feed Liens

Minot, N. D., Aug. 29.—A vigorous campaign to effect collection of 1918 and 1920 seed and feed liens in Ward county was decided upon by the county commission, when a resolution was adopted providing for the employment of

Fred V. Dale as a collector. Mr. Dale will work on a percentage basis. An attempt will be made to collect cash on as many of the liens as possible, and if this is impossible an effort will be made to obtain chattel or real estate security. In case neither of these plans can be put into effect, the state's attorney will be instructed to begin a civil action and convert the lien into a judgment to be docketed in district court.

WAR MOTHER

Mrs. Jones advised them that only the blood mothers under the constitution could hold office, but that all mothers by the Indian relationship could have a voice in affairs of the chapter and could vote for the officers.

In a white woman's organization the situation would have been described as tense, with perhaps baleful glares in evidence. It was apparent too that Mrs. LeFranchois and Mrs. Gray Bull had had differences.

Major Welch stepped into the circle and met the points demanded by Mrs. LeFranchois, who was but one of three Indian women of the chapter who could speak English. When everything was explained, Mrs. LeFranchois declared that she was satisfied all differences were forgotten and in a matter of fact way reached over, shook hands with Mr. Welch, the state officers and Mrs. Gray Bull Peace reigned.

Feast Goes On
 For two hours the pow wow continued, while outside the shadows grew deeper. Finally a single lantern was introduced into the tent and the party ended and the feast began. It was too much for the newspaper men and the white women for sitting cross-legged on the bare ground sent rheumatic twinges. Seats were provided and the feast went on.

The Indian women are convinced that they must raise the money "for the honor and glory of the Sioux nation" to send their president and the state standard bearer to Kansas City.

paign is strengthened by the fact that her own son, now 20, would be listed among eligible "cannon fodder" in an new war.

"Of course in time of war we'd fight. All of us would," she declares. "But why fight? The fighting doesn't settle anything. Whatever, if anything, is settled is settled by a group of men in conference about a table, anyway."

Patric? Of course. But patriotism, she contends, may be expressed as effectively and more helpfully in peace than in war. When the late war broke out she renounced her title of Baroness von Glantz, acquired through a marriage with an Austrian nobleman, resuming her maiden name.

Black-haired, dark-eyed, with boundless energy and enthusiasm, she gives the impression of one who will have peace even if she must fight for it. Indeed, she openly announces her willingness, even her determination to fight for peace.

But not with bullets or poison gas or bombs. She'd use moving picture films.

CUBS VICTORY PUSHES GIANTS DOWN LADDER

League Leaders Again Are Just Three Games Above Cincinnati Reds

(By the Associated Press.)
The New York Yankees, who had a not too hot start, today won their third game in a row, beating the Cincinnati Reds 4 to 1. The victory was due to a combination of factors, including a strong pitching performance by the Yankees' ace, and a timely home run by the Yankees' slugger.

The Cincinnati Reds, who had been leading the league, today fell to second place, behind the Yankees. The Yankees' victory was a significant blow to the Reds' hopes of winning the pennant.

The St. Louis Cardinals, who had been in third place, today moved up to first place, ahead of the Yankees. The Cardinals' victory was a significant blow to the Yankees' hopes of winning the pennant.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL MEN START TUESDAY

First Practice Will Be Held Second Day of Opening of The School Here

With school opening set for next Monday, athletic interest in the Bismarck High School is turned toward the football team. Coach Edgar Houser, who is back in the city preparing for the beginning of practice, will have three or four of last year's stars and many players on last year's squad as a nucleus. Some of the freshmen have shown well on school teams in the city and are expected to make a strong bid for places.

First practice probably will be held next Tuesday afternoon. Among the players expected to report are Captain Benzer, Scott, Alfson, Brown, Jess, Scroggins, Lane, Sam Kirk, Tony Garcke, Norris, Fitch, "But" Soules, Jimmy Olson, a star on the St. Mary's team, Balzer, Kline, Joe Fetting and Willis Shepherd.

It is expected there will be some boys from outside the city who desire to enter Bismarck High School and try for the team. They want to work part of their way through school and must do so if they come.

Coach Houser asks that any citizens having jobs which can be performed by such men notify him.

Same Old Team Will Resist Australian Efforts to March Away With Davis Cup

By Roy Grove
NEA Service Writer
New York, Aug. 29.—The Davis cup, international tennis trophy, must be defended again.

And by the simplest computations it will stay in the states.

The same famous team, Norris Williams, William Tilden, Bill Johnson, and the youthful Vincent Richards, the Yonkers flash, will do the battering.

The men oppose their old and sincerest enemy in Davis cup play, the Australian team, at Forest Hills, N. Y., on Aug. 31, Sept. 1 and 3, under the same conditions as last year.

Only three nations have won the famous bowl since competition has started. They're the United States, Great Britain and Australia.

The Australians and the Americans will have to battle off a tie as they have six victories apiece to their credit. Great Britain has held the mug five times.

Belgium and Japan are the only other nations to get to the challenging rounds. Japan in 1921 defeated the Australians. They in turn were walloped by the Americans. The famous cup has been in competition for nearly 22 years. It has traveled more than 100,000 miles. Dwight Davis was the original donor. The bowl has become so covered with inscriptions that a large tray has been made to hold additional names.

The old reliable doubles, Tilden and Williams, who won the cup from Australia, will bear the burden of the singles, representing this country for their fourth successive year. They've never been defeated.

In a certain game, with the wind blowing in toward the plate, it is apparent that much of the time the flag is flying on fair territory. The flag is about 30 feet in the air.

The batsman hits a long drive to right field which seems certain will clear the fence by a wide margin. The ball veers into the direction of the flag, strikes it, and is temporarily lost in the folds of the flag.

As the flag rights itself the ball drops back onto the playing field. The fielder recovers the ball and throws to the third baseman, who touches the batsman with the ball as he nears that base.

The umpire ruled the drive a home run even though he admitted that the flag was flying in playing territory when struck by the ball.

What about such a ruling? THE INTERPRETATION The umpire rendered the correct ruling when he allowed the batsman a home run.

In the first place the fact that the flagpole extends outside of playing territory would settle the argument. No consideration can be given the fact that the flag was actually flying over playing territory when the ball came into contact with it.

It is obvious that the ball would have cleared the fence by a wide margin had not it struck the flag, which was flying high above the fence.

A similar play recently came up in the National League and the home run ruling was upheld.

Campaign Made To Collect Feed Liens

Minot, N. D., Aug. 29.—A vigorous campaign to effect collection of 1918 and 1920 seed and feed liens in Ward county was decided upon by the county commission, when a resolution was adopted providing for the employment of

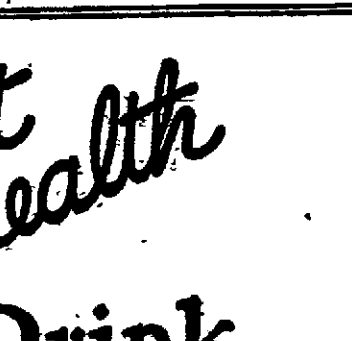

Fred V. Dale as a collector. Mr. Dale will work on a percentage basis. An attempt will be made to collect cash on as many of the liens as possible, and if this is impossible an effort will be made to obtain chattel or real estate security. In case neither of these plans can be put into effect, the state's attorney will be instructed to begin a civil action and convert the lien into a judgment to be docketed in district court.

EXPERTS PLAN BIG PROGRAM FOR FUTURE

University Head Arranges Broad Program Which Is Adopted

URGE BIRTH CONTROL
Courses in Eugenics Should Be in Institutions of Learning

Chicago, Aug. 29.—A program for the "practical application of eugenic principles" to the improvement of the people of America, made public today by the Eugenics Committee of the United States, suggests segregation of defective types, sterilization, laws encouraging parenthood by those endowed with good hereditary traits, and enactments rationalizing marriage and divorce regulations, as among the more important aims in the field of legislation.

Inquiry into the eugenic elements in birth control is mentioned as one of the most important research problems. More than 200 activities for eugenic societies and welfare workers are outlined.

The program was arranged by a subcommittee of the American organization headed by Prof. Henry E. Crampton of Columbia University. Other members of the sub-committee are Professors Irving Fisher and Roswell Johnson, and Dr. Harry Laughlin. The national body is composed of prominent scientists, educators, churchmen, public officials, and social workers and is affiliated with the International Commission on Eugenics whose headquarters is in London. Prof. Fisher is chairman of the American committee. Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal Court of Chicago, also a member of the committee, made public the program.

"For the first time in history," he said, "a unified, coordinated, practicable and comprehensive scheme for the conservation of human resources is offered. We have heard much recently of the importance of conservation as related to material things. This program offers conservation of the richest traits of human character and the finest types of human physique, without either of which man cannot attain the fullness of life which is the end of human destiny."

War, immigration, farm credits, protective tariffs, transportation, labor unions, and housing all are mentioned in the program as problems for eugenic research.

The automobile is mentioned as a factor in rural eugenics "since it tends to reduce in-breeding from propinquity, and to widen the range of marriage selection in rural districts."

The eugenic aspect of higher education is presented in the question "Are universities attracting the most intelligent elements in the population and virtually sterilizing them, both students and teachers?"

Concerning the present general tendency of migration from rural communities to the larger cities, the report asks if the population centers attract "the superior, intelligent and able bodied young people from the farms, or the inferior?"

"If the superior stocks are being driven off by present tendencies to the sterile life of city commerce, this constitutes a dysgenic drain upon the population," the report says. "It is estimated that in four generations the 50 percent of the present population which is on the farms tends to become 88 percent of the total stock." It then is pointed out that two tendencies are demonstrated by research to be continually operative, the result would be that close to 900 out of every 1,000 of American population four generations hence would be of the stock of the lower mental and physical types of the present time.

Securing the segregation of certain classes, "such as the criminal defective" should receive special emphasis from the outset, the committee suggests. Farm colonies for the segregated classes are urged. In such colonies sterilized people would live virtually normal lives under semi-institutional care, but would not burden society with defective off-spring.

Revision of immigration laws to provide for the selection of arrivals "on the basis of superiority to the American average" by mental tests, and for careful physical examination to reveal dysgenic types, is listed as a second legislative aim of the immediate future.

The rapid multiplication of defective stocks from even the present comparatively small immigration quotas constitute a grave menace to American life, students of eugenics declare. In the 33-year period ended February, 1923, it is pointed out, more than 7,400,000 aliens of types lower than the "low average of intelligence standard" came to America in the total immigration of less than 14,000,000 persons.

A plan to move the entire immigration examination machinery from Ellis Island to the various countries which furnish our new peoples has been suggested to administration officials at Washington, and is said to be now under consideration by a cabinet officer.

Referring to the extensive movement of farm folk to the cities and its consequent eugenic drain, the report says the solution "seems to depend chiefly upon whether American rural life is economically and culturally attractive enough to retain the best stocks, and attract new and good stock from the cities." In this connection it is suggested that legislation helpful to "farm credits, farmers' cooperatives, community art, rural education, abolition of protective tariffs, and suburban life for city workers" would be eugenic measures of the highest order.

Arrangement of institutions of higher learning for their adherence to "monastic ideas" regarding married students is a part of the report. "Their best fellowships are not open to married students," it says. "They seem to be doing much to limit the propagation of the most intellectual elements in society."

"Important steps in the field of eugenic education should be taken immediately. All large universities should have courses in eugenics. Education as to the supreme importance of biological factors in human life should eventually be extended through the entire school system, down to the elementary grades."

"Care should be taken to square eugenics with rational democratic ideals, by exposing false claims of class superiority and espousing equal opportunity to demonstrate intrinsic merit."

"Public libraries should be provided with suitable literature, departments of health should become eugenic agencies, and departments of eugenics should be established in every state. It is important in this connection, that only well established facts should be taught, and not premature and possibly dangerous hypotheses be given out as facts."

While declaring that all the human traits which make better people are not yet defined, the report declares that the quality of sympathy and gentleness is generally acknowledged as of first importance.

"Kindness," it says, "is one of the most important and most valuable characteristics."

"The problem of encouraging the recognition of eugenic factors in marriage selection is one which ultimately may be worked out through schools, colleges, and other agencies."

blems of combating disease, disability, defectiveness, degeneracy, delinquency, vice and crime."

Additional laws suggested for incorporation into the national "eugenic code" would provide:

Setting the minimum marriage age at 18;

Statutes concerned with illegitimacy;

Establishing dysgenic inheritable defects as adequate grounds for divorce;

Bonding provisions for families, communities, states, and nations against the production of defectives;

Mother's pensions, and laws encouraging differential salaries based on the size and quality of families;

Systematic mental testing of children at ten years and sixteen years;

Removal of the present restrictions on information and materials for the prevention of conception;

Regulation of employment of women and children as regards wages, hours, housing and conditions of labor;

Systematic and official registration of family pedigrees.

"The chapter on legislation is concluded with the stern admonition that 'enactment of laws should wait upon exact determination of facts.'"

"The ultimate fruits of any eugenic movement will, by the nature of the case, require many generations. The task cannot be considered a short campaign like many political and social movements. It is, rather, like the founding and development of religion, something to be handed on from age to age."

- Will you agree to submit the springs of the car you are selling to a comparative tensile strength test with Overland?
- Is your clutch of improved plate type and enclosed, or is it an obsolete type, open and exposed to the elements?
- Why don't you want me to buy by comparison—a silk merchant compares two fabrics to effect a sale—a furrier two pelts—a jeweler several diamonds, etc. Do you, Mr. Salesman, when you buy a pair of shoes, have the salesman show you WHAT IS IN THE BOX or do you buy them because THE BOX looks good? Why shouldn't I use the same good judgment in buying an automobile?
- Are your cylinders REAMED and LAPPED or are they just Reamed, and are your Valve Tappets of the Mushroom type (of course they cost more)?
- Has your car REGULAR OVERSIZE tires or SPECIAL UNDERSIZE tires?
- Has your car, like Overland, 1 1/2 inch axle shafts with big Timken bearings and removable (as in the highest price cars) without tearing down the entire assembly?
- Is the entire mechanism of your motor, including fly wheel, starter gear, and clutch, enclosed in a dust proof housing and running in oil?
- Is your differential case in ONE or TWO pieces?
- Will you disassemble your latest model along side of an OVERLAND—laying the parts side by side so that I may compare the "insides" of the two cars part for part?
- Has your automobile a solid steel body, reinforced entirely with steel and has it a baked enamel finish?
- If I had bought your car in 1919, 1920, 1921 or 1922, what would it be worth to-day according to the National Used Car Market Report, used by automobile dealers in taking in used cars?
